North Central Aging and Disability Partnership — a partnership among Connecticut Community Care, Inc., Independence Unlimited, Inc., and North Central Area Agency on Aging — launched Connecticut's third Aging and Disability Resource Center with a celebration May 4 in the north lobby of the state Capitol. The new center, called Community Choices, will serve the north central part of the state from an office at 151 Park Ave. in Hartford. More than 100 people attended the event. In the photo are, from left, Pamela Giannini, director of the state's Bureau of Aging, Community and Social Work; Molly Rees Gavin, president, Connecticut Community Care, Inc; Candace Low, executive director, Independence Unlimited, Inc; and Carmen Reyes, NCAAA executive director. Community Choices helps individuals with adult care, disability related services, elder abuse prevention, employment, finances, housing, adaptive equipment, transportation, nutrition, mental health and substance abuse services. Other centers serve the south central and western parts of the state.
