HARTFORD, May 6th- The Connecticut Captive Insurance Association (“CCIA”), the state’s captive trade organization, announced May 14, 2013 is “Captive Insurance Day at the Capitol.” The program of events to be presented are intended to build awareness regarding the growing captive insurance market in the state and to educate members of Connecticut’s General Assembly about the benefits of captive insurance.

“Senator Joe Crisco and Representative Bob Megna, the Co-Chairs of the General Assembly’s Insurance and Real Estate Committee, have been tremendous supporters of Connecticut’s captive insurance initiative. This special day was Senator Crisco’s idea and we are so please to be able to showcase Connecticut as the new domicile of choice in the U.S.,” said Tom Hodson, President of the CCIA.

The featured event of the day is an Informational Hearing (invited speakers only) to be conducted at 10am before the Insurance and Real Estate Committee about captive insurance. The hearing is open to all parties interested in learning about captive insurance in Connecticut and will be held in the Legislative Office Building.

Immediately following the Informational Hearing, Captive Day at the Capitol will conclude with a “town hall” style meeting featuring John Thomson, Connecticut’s chief captive regulator. This is an opportunity for industry members to discuss with Mr. Thomson his vision for regulating captives in the state.

About the Connecticut Captive Insurance Association

The Connecticut Captive Insurance Association is a nonprofit trade association formed to support the growth of the captive insurance market in Connecticut.

The mission of the CCIA is:

- To promote the interests of the captive insurance industry;
- To provide a communication interface for members and other groups;
- To establish policy positions on major issues that affect its members;
- To represent the interests of the captive insurance industry before federal, state and local government bodies;
- To provide its members with opportunities for education.

Information can be found at www.ConnCaptives.org. Links to all of our members can be found under the “Captive Insurance Resources” tab on our website.

As with most associations, CCIA’s efforts are on behalf of the industry and focused on improving and enhancing the captive market as a whole, and do not expressly reflect the views of any specific member.
