Questions for the Department of Consumer Protection

re: Section 21a-408-19 The criteria for the issuance of additional producer licenses do not mention the consideration of the economic viability of producers for which licenses have been granted. Will such a consideration be taken into account?

Section 21a-408-20-7 In light of the uncertainties regarding medical marijuana under federal law and otherwise as a new but heavily regulated activity, does the Department of Consumer Protection anticipate providing further specification concerning what might constitute acceptable, substantial compliance of a producer with the regulations, particularly with respect to the entry of producers into production within 180 days of the issuance of a producer license?

Section 21a-408-21 May the original business and marketing plans vary, due to good faith considerations, from the plans initially submitted to the Department of Consumer Protection?

Section 21a-408-23 Upon a regulatorily compliant notification by a licensed producer to the Department of Consumer Protection regarding the nonrenewal of a producer license, will the amount held in escrow be returned or released to the producer?

Section 21a-408-52 Do the producer location requirements contemplate compliance the time of producer license approval only, or do they contemplate relocation of a producer if a school or otherwise inappropriately proximate use should arise after the grant of a producer license?

Section 21a-408-53 and -64 What type of destruction does the Department contemplate? Specifically, destruction that one might realistically and pragmatically anticipate conducting on-site versus off-site?

Section 21-408-61 Which types of storage safes and vaults does the Department contemplate? Does the Department anticipate issuing required design descriptions in the immediate future?
