NOTES from the DEPARTMENT . . .

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL AG DAY AT THE CAPITOL!

by Jaime Lizée-Smith, Marketing Representative

On Wednesday, March 18, 2009, the CT Department of Agriculture and the CT Agriculture and Natural Resources Association (CANRA) sponsored CT Agriculture Day at the Capitol. Held in the North Lobby and Hall of Flags, nearly 50 agricultural organizations and state and federal agencies were available to answer questions, distribute information and even a few food samples of what CT agriculture has to offer.

Lt. Governor Fedele joined Ag Commissioner F. Philip Prelli to welcome everyone at noon. After a few truly inspiring words from the Lt. Governor Fedele, he read the Ag Day Proclamation, officially stating that Wednesday, March 18, 2009 was Agriculture Day in Connecticut.

Following the Ag Day Proclamation, Eric Henry from Blue Hills Orchard in Wallingford, CT received the 2009 Outstanding Young Farmer (OYF) Award. The OYF is a national competitive award given on a yearly basis to a deserving farmer who has qualified through an application and judging process. Sponsored by CANRA, the CT Jaycees, and the CT Farm Bureau, the purpose of the award is to foster better urban-rural relations with farmers by creating a greater public interest and understanding of today's farmers and their challenges. Four national winners from the 50 states are honored annually at the National Outstanding Young Farmers Awards Banquet.

The 2008 Ag Journalism Awards were also awarded to nine media representatives. The Awards recognized excellence in reporting on agricultural issues published or broadcast in the state during the calendar year 2007-2008. The Awards were made possible by a grant from Moark LLC/KofKoff Egg Farms. The Winners of the 2008 Connecticut Agricultural Journalism Awards include:

- ◇ Ryan Hanrahan, NBC-30-TV, "Going Green at the White Hart", news story/television, November 17, 2008.
- ◇ John Charlton & Mike Piskorski, Fox 61 TV, "CowPots", feature story/television, November 13, 2008.
- ◇ Christine Ayotte, NBC-30-TV, "CT-Grown stories/demos", series/television, May 2-December 1, 2008.
- ◇ Terri Miles, Hersam Acorn Newspapers, "How Do You Move A Giant Pumpkin?", photography/weekly newspapers, October 4, 2007.
- ◇ Joel Thompson, The Connecticut Post, "Friendly Rivals", feature story/daily newspapers, December 13, 2008
- ◇ Steve Grant, The Hartford Courant, "Tried, True & New", feature story/daily newspapers, July 6, 2008.

◇ Jan Ellen Spiegel, The New York Times, "Yes It's Local, Even In Winter", news story/daily newspapers, March 23, 2008.

◇ Karen Avitabile, Journeys magazine (AAA), "Connecticut On the Vine", feature story/magazines, July/August 2008.

◇ Macklin Reid, The Ridgefield Press, "Tomato Time", feature story/weekly newspapers, August 28, 2008.

Congratulations to all the winners!

Thank you to everyone who exhibited and made Ag Day at the Capitol another successful one! We look forward to seeing you on March 18, 2010 for the next Ag Day! For more information about Ag Day, please contact Jaime Smith with the CT Dept of Ag, at 860-713-2559 or jaime.smith@ct.gov.

GROW DYNAMIC SALES AT FARMERS' MARKETS MARKETING MAVEN BRUCE BAKER RETURNS!

You are invited to join the Coventry Regional Farmers' Market for this ALL NEW workshop in Coventry on April 5, 2009 from 3:00 pm – 5:30 pm. Location is the Second Congregational Church Community House at 1746 Boston Turnpike (Route 44) in Coventry.

Today's economy is a challenge... Are you doing everything you can to generate successful sales? Don't miss an opportunity to learn from a national expert how to:

- Use current trends to reach customers with "deep pockets"
- Create effective signage and branding
- Offer customer service that builds loyalty and repeat sales

Those who have implemented Bruce's tips report sales increases up to 30%.

Members of the Coventry Market say, "We loved him last year and look forward to learning more... Bruce brings boundless energy, great expertise, good humor, and up-to-date information and ideas to his workshops. He has led over 500 workshops throughout the United States and Canada in the last twenty years. He speaks on a variety of direct marketing related topics such as display, sales and customer service. Bruce has a special talent for making his workshops lively and relevant to the audience. His web site is: www.bbakerinc.com."

Who should attend? Market organizers and anyone selling at farmers' markets and craft fairs.

For more information call (860) 742-1410. *Pre-registration is required; the number of participants is very limited.

CONNECTICUT BED BUG FORUM

New Haven, Conn.. –A Connecticut bed bug forum was held recently at The Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station (CAES) where 180 staff from local health departments, housing authorities, and pest control companies met to discuss the coordinated management of bed bugs in the State of Connecticut. In a half day program filled to capacity, participants also had the opportunity to listen to a number of lectures about bed bug biology, research, control, and several management issues.

Dr. Gale E. Ridge, an entomologist in the CAES Insect Inquiry Office, organized this event in cooperation with Pamela Kilby-Fox, Connecticut Department of Public Health, Diane Jorsey, Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection, Judith R. Dicine, Connecticut Division of Criminal Justice, Tim Callahan, Norwalk Health Department, and Mike Lipsett, Connecticut Pest Control. She said in her opening statement that, “ the purpose of this forum is to have a town hall meeting (supported by lectures), where professionals in health, pest control, and housing might collaborate on what can be done together towards the common goal of controlling an old, but resurging pest”.

Dr. Kirby C. Stafford III, Vice Director of CAES and State Entomologist, said in his welcome statement that “Bedbugs have reemerged as a major pest problem in Connecticut and we have seen an increase in bedbug related inquiries at the Experiment Station. In response to this new problem, Dr. John F. Anderson, Senior Scientist at CAES, initiated a bed bug research program and this timely forum was organized by Dr. Ridge. As a measure of the importance of this topic, many more wished to attend than could be accommodated and plans are underway to provide a public lecture on bedbug biology and control and a repeat of this specialist’s forum at a later date.”

Dr. Ridge talked about bed bug biology, history, and factors associated with their recent resurgence. Dr. Anderson talked about research that he is conducting on bed bugs as well as other research and developments on bed bug control. A demonstration of the use of trained dogs for the detection of small bed bug populations was provided by Mr. Charlie Mastroberti and his two bed bug sniffing dogs, Ellie and Sniffer. Mr. Michael Siwek, Executive director of West Haven Housing Authority, talked about the housing authority experiences with bed bug issues and Attorney Judith R. Dicine from the Connecticut Division of Criminal Justice skillfully lead the audience through the legal issues of bed bug management. With the speakers forming an expert panel following the talks, the panel and audience discussed ways to help provide a coordinated management effort of bed bug control between different local and state agencies and pest control professionals in Connecticut.
