EXHIBITION: Great Art on Screen
beginning with Manet: Portraying Life

Hartford, CT (March 7, 2013) – Cinestudio announces EXHIBITION, a series of ground-breaking art events created for the cinema, connecting major international art exhibitions to millions of art lovers across 30 countries. The exciting new series will launch on April 21, 2013 with Manet: Portraying Life from the Royal Academy of Arts, London. Manet will be followed in June 2013 with Munch from the National Museum & Munch Museum, Oslo and in October 2013 with Vermeer from the National Gallery, London. Additional titles and dates for major exhibitions in 2014 will be announced soon.

EXHIBITION will feature intimate tours of major art exhibitions that previously could only be seen locally. Each cinema event will capture and explore these important shows, going behind-the-scenes to bring a wealth of masterpieces to audiences via state-of-the-art digital cinema technology. Tim Marlow, noted art historian and broadcaster, along with special guests will guide theater audiences through each exhibition as well as delivering unique insights into the lives and inspirations of the artists.

Manet: Portraying Life will bring viewers into the hugely popular exhibition at London's Royal Academy of Arts, consisting of more than 50 works; including portraits of Manet's most frequent sitters and scenes from everyday life that reveal Manet's forward-thinking approach. The broadcast's director, Phil Grabsky says "I have been driven by the desire to share the thrill of great exhibitions with everyone from Kansas City to Adelaide, Osaka to Naples, and Glasgow to Cape Town." Manet's featured art critic Tim Marlow adds "I think that standing face to face with some of the greatest works of art ever made is one of the most powerful experiences in life."

EXHIBITION is brought to Cinestudio through the cutting edge company BY EXPERIENCE, which kicked off the digital revolution of live events broadcast in movie theaters with The Met: Live in HD series, as well as the popular series of British theater now showing at Cinestudio: National Theatre Live.
