The Office of the Healthcare Advocate launches its Behavioral Health Clearinghouse informational website

Hartford, CT - The Office of the Healthcare Advocate is developing a behavioral health clearinghouse as required by Public Act 14-115: An Act Connecting the Public To Behavioral Health Care Services.

This effort will ultimately consist of an informational website with a searchable directory of behavioral health providers and a call center staffed with clinicians to help consumers primarily with commercial insurance connect with appropriate behavioral health providers.

Through this initiative, Connecticut residents will be provided with a comprehensive, convenient and easy to understand source for behavioral health information and services.
