

Elizabeth Krause

Elizabeth Krause is a Program Officer at the Connecticut Health Foundation (CHF), the state's largest private Foundation dedicated to improving the health of the people of Connecticut. As Program Officer, she develops programmatic initiatives, reviews proposals, monitors a multi-million dollar grant portfolio, and provides technical assistance to grantees, particularly in the area of racial and ethnic health disparities. She is a graduate of CHF's year long leadership fellowship.

Previously, she was with the Public Health Prevention Service of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Her tenure with CDC included assignments with the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control where she worked on state traumatic brain injury data systems; the CDC Foundation where she worked on program evaluation, emergency preparedness, and mobile mammography; and a two year field placement with the Colorado Department of Public Health where she was instrumental in developing Colorado's Office of Health Disparities and co-authored the state's 2005 health disparities surveillance report. She also served two temporary duty assignments with the CDC Global AIDS Program in Rwanda.

Ms Krause holds an AB from Smith College and an SM from the Harvard School of Public Health. In her free time, she serves on the boards of the Hartford Smith College Club and the CT Asian Pacific American Coalition. She is a member of the Junior League of Greater Hartford and Leadership Greater Hartford's 2009 Quest class.
