

The 327th Training Session participated in a lecture from Major League Baseball Umpire Eddie Rapuano. Eddie is a 20-year MLB umpire, with a distinguished major league career, growing up in East Haven, Connecticut.

His lecture centered on integrity, honesty and respect issues in the world of major league sports officiating and the comparison to law enforcement officers facing the same issues in today's society.

Eddie not only developed an excellent rapport with the recruits but even added several very interesting and humorous stories. At the conclusion of the lecture Chief Thomas Flaherty, Executive Director of The Connecticut Police Academy, presented Eddie with a Certificate of Merit plaque and the POST challenge coin.
